The Governor Amendments.

We soliced yesterday in one of our exges the statement that it was not known nether the Governor would signor refuse sten the amendment to the State Constiution (in regard to the capitation tax) which has been proposed by the two houses of the General Assembly. We had thought It setlied that the Governor has nothing to do with the propesing of amendments to the Constitution. We have heard, indeed, that Covernor KBEFFER signed the joint resolution passed during his administration proposing certain amendments to the Constitution; but we suppose that he did so because the approved of those ameridments, and because no question was raised as to his power

The language of our State Constitution and that of the Constitution of the United States are almost identical so far as the question we are now discussing is concerned.
The State Constitution provides:

"Any amendment or amendments to the Constitution may be proposed in the Senate and House of Delegates, and if the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the mem-bers elected to each of the two houses,"

The United States Constitution provides: "The Congre-s, whenever two thirds of both houses shall doem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution,"

These two provisions are nearly the same in so far as they affect the right of the Governer or the President to veto a joint resolution: proposing amendments to the State or to the Federal Constitution. Both Constitutions have provisions requiring every resolution to which the assent of both branches of the law-miking body is necessary to be submitted to the President or the Governor for his approval; but that in the have the facts certified by the courts, &c. Federal Constitution is much less clear in ining what sort of resolutions are meant than is that contained in the Virginia Constitution. The former provides that before any such resolution "shall take effect" the President must sign it. The latter provides that every such resolution shall "before it becomes a law" be presented to the Governor for his signature. So that in the case of an amendment proposed by Congress, the President might possibly have the right to veto it, the language "before it shall take effect" being broad enough to cover a joint resolution :proposing such an amendment. But the language of our-State Constitution cannot be made to include any resolution except such as " become laws" when signed by the Governor.

Mr.: Lincoln declined to sign the joint resolution proposing the thirteenth amendment to the United States Constitution, according to our recollection; but as we have nothing before us to show the fact, we will not insist upon it.

But ANDREW Johnson set a precedent which covers the case fully. In 1866 the two houses of Congress proposed the fourteenth amendment to the State Legislatures for ratification. Mr. Jourson was requested by Congress to submit the amendment. The record adds :

"On June 20th the President [Johnson] submitted the report of the Secretary of State [that he had sent the joint resolution proposing the amendments to the several Governous to Congress, expressing at the same time his disapproposal of the amendment." - Pribune Almanac, 1867.

Evidently President Johnson bad not rbeen usked to sign the joint resolution, since he took this occasion to express his disapproval of the amendment, and since be did not veto it, as be would certainly bave done if we had had the power.

If. then, the President bas not the power in question, it is absolutely certain that it is not possessed by our Governor. The latter is required to sign only such foiat reselutions as will "become laws" so soon as he signs them. Ajoint resolution proposing a constitutional agrendment is not a law in

We condude, therefore, that the Gavamended by the act of March 31, 1875, so is to prevent the Baltimore and Ohio rail-point resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution.—If he signs one, his act gives it no additional validity. act gives it no additional validity.

Judge Rives will now have a feeling sense of his unwisdom.

What will be undertake next?

Er. LAYDER stied the conflicting decisions of the General Assembly on this subject. He believed that whatever might be the views of members the resolution should be adopted as a matter of precaution and safety. For himself he had no doubt that this was the last day of the session.

Mr. Lacy (Mr. Cross in the chair) opposed the resolution. He could not understand the motive for it; there could be no doubt about the status of this General Assembly. The session is an unlimited one.

Mr. Mcshbach was on the floor speaking in lavor of the resolution when, at 12 o'clock, the Chair (Mr. Cross) announced the special order—the liquer bill. Referred.

Mr. Smith of Alexandris presented a bill-to amend section 4 of P.a act approved February 2, 1880, to incorporate the Virginis Angola Company, which was passed, under a suspension of the rules, on metion of Mr. Smith.

Mr. Lovell presented a resolution that the chair be vacated at 3 P. M. and resumed at 8 P. M., and that the session tonight be deveted to bills on the calendar. Agreed to.

The latest on dit is that B. S. Hooper, of Prince Edward, has been put in training for Congressman Jorgensen's place. Well, he is a strong man, and is a representative man, too, of the Readjuster-Republican wing of the Radical party. The pockets of his unmentionables are plethoric with Prince Edward and Cumberland African fellow-citizens; and he is one thing, first, last, and all the time-an unadulterated Republican. He is not a Conservative to-day and a Republican to-morrow. He is the best of the breed of Radicals. He sin't afraid of Senator Mahone, E. R. T.
